Objective

I'm a Frontend & Mobile-app developer, based in Lagos - Nigeria and I have been developing for more than three years. During this period I have worked on several projects while learning multiple web languages that I now speak fluently and confidently backed by the experiences I have garnered over the years. I currently learn new, in-demand web technologies to improve my backend skills on my journey to Fullstack status.

Experience

August 2018
Started Frontend Develpment

Started my web development journey set on the goal of making Web Development more known as a transformational and profitable skill through my works and impact in the development community in Nigeria and the World at large.

June 2020 - Current
Freelance Frontend developer

I offer web development  services that put business in the right spot socially; getting across to the right customers and easily accessible by many.

August 2020 - Current
Mobile Development

I started mobile development using React Native in building an app called Self  which is an all-in-one app for Android and iOS users. This project is still in development.
